THE 60-SECOND STORY FORMULA

Every strong short needs movement. Each section has one job.

00-03	HOOK	Stop the scroll. Open with conflict, surprise or an unanswered question.
03-05	TITLE	Make the promise clear. Tell viewers what story they are entering.
05-15	SETUP	Establish the character, world and problem without wasting time.
15-40	ESCALATION	Raise the stakes. Add new information, tension and consequences.
40-55	CLIMAX	Deliver the moment the viewer stayed for - reveal, twist or payoff.
55-60	ENDING + CTA	Land the story, then give the viewer a reason to comment, follow or share.

RULE: If a section doesn't add curiosity, stakes or payoff, cut it.

10 HOOK FORMULAS

FOR ALMOST ANY NICHE

Replace the brackets. Keep the promise specific. Don't explain the whole story in line one.

- 01 Nobody expected [PERSON / THING] to do this.
- 02 This [EVENT] changed [NICHE] forever.
- 03 The real reason [OUTCOME] happened is darker than you think.
- 04 [PERSON] had one problem - and it was about to get worse.
- 05 Everyone remembers [EVENT]. Almost nobody knows what happened next.
- 06 This looks normal until you notice one detail.
- 07 [PERSON] thought they had won. They were wrong.
- 08 The biggest mistake in [NICHE] started with one small decision.
- 09 Before [OUTCOME], there was a warning everyone ignored.
- 10 If you think you know the story of [TOPIC], wait until the end.

YOUR FIRST SCRIPT

MINI AI SCRIPT PROMPT

This is intentionally the starter version. The full course includes the complete Gamer Kitty Master Prompt.

STARTER_PROMPT.TXT

You are a short-form storytelling writer.

NICHE: [your niche]

TOPIC: [specific story / person / event]

CHARACTER STYLE: [your visual character style]

Write a fast, cinematic 60-second script designed for retention.

Use this structure:

1. Hook
2. Title
3. Setup
4. Escalation
5. Climax
6. Ending + CTA

Keep sentences concise and visual. Build curiosity and stakes.

Avoid dry exposition. Make every section move the story forward.

After the script, split it into short visual phrases that can each be turned into one image scene.
